DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

PART I – CELL TYPE

This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species with regard to the recited “cell”:

- I-a) macrophage,
- I-b) thymocyte,
- I-c) dendritic cell,
- I-d) monocytic THP-1 cell activated with IFN-gamma, and
- I-e) MHC class II+ CD11c+ thymic dendritic cell

The species are independent or distinct because a separate, non-coextensive search of the patent and non-patent literature is required for each cell type. Also, a reference disclosing administration of an agent to a thymocyte would not render obvious administration of the same agent to a macrophage, for example.

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, claim 1 is generic.

PART II – PHYSIOLOGY OR DEVELOPMENT

This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species with regard to the recited “physiology” or “development”:

- II-a) cellular calcium flux,

II-b) chemoattractant response,
II-c) cellular morphology modification response,
II-d) phosphoinositide lipid turnover response,
II-e) antiviral response,
II-f) immunological response,
II-g) inflammatory response in thymus, and
II-h) inflammatory response in gastrointestinal tract, including colon and small intestine.

The species are independent or distinct because a separate, non-coextensive search of the patent and non-patent literature is required for each response. Also, a reference disclosing an effect of calcium flux would not necessarily render obvious an effect on inflammation in the gastrointestinal tract, for example.

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, claim 1 is generic.

PART III – AGONIST OR ANTAGONIST

This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species with regard to the recited “agonist or antagonist”:

III-a) TECK polypeptide,
III-b) an agonist that is a type of antibody, including Fv, Fab, Fab2, monoclonal, or polyclonal,
III-c) another specific agonist that is not a TECK polypeptide or an antibody

III-d) an antagonist that that is a type of antibody, including Fv, Fab, Fab2, monoclonal, or polyclonal, and III-e) another specific antagonist that is not an antibody.

The species are independent or distinct because a separate, non-coextensive search of the patent and non-patent literature is required for each agonist or antagonist, since they have different structures and functions. Also, a reference disclosing administration of TECK would not render obvious administration of TECK antibody, for example.

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, claim 1 is generic.

Applicant is advised that a reply to this requirement must include an identification of the species that is elected consonant with this requirement for each of PART I, PART II, and PART III above, and a listing of all claims readable thereon, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which depend from or otherwise require all the limitations of an allowable generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species.
